Petsafe collar manual rfa-467

Things You'll Need Soft cloth or rag Quarter RFA-67 battery Totally invisible and safe, the PetSafe Wireless Pet Containment System and the RFA-67 collar keep your pet within the boundaries of an electronic fence. The RFA-67 collar, also known as the "Receiver Collar," contains a battery in its front. No special tool is required to open the collar and change the battery, but you must remove the collar from your pet first. Remove the PetSafe collar from your pet by squeezing the two plastic clips on the side of the collar inward. Wipe the front of the collar with a soft cloth or rag. This will remove any debris from around the battery housing. Insert a quarter into the slot on the front of the battery housing. Turn the battery housing counter-clockwise to remove it. Place the old battery housing to the side. Insert the new RFA-67 battery housing into the PetSafe collar. Insert a quarter into the slot on the front of the battery housing. Turn it clockwise until the arrow on the battery housing and the triangle on the collar line up. The battery housing is now locked into place. Tips Dispose of the old battery housing properly, at a recycling center or other battery drop-off location. A Walmart+ membership helps you save more time & money. Written by a PetSafe customer. Helpful? The shock collar will blink a red light. Change the battery. I get about 4 months on a battery. I am happy with that. Written by a PetSafe customer. Helpful? Get all batteries from here. They work great for my Doberman. Written by a petsafe.net customer. Helpful? These were purchased for our dogs collar for the underground fence we purchased. It is the kind that the collar uses. The one installed at present has lasts for quite awhile now. Written by a PetSafe customer. Helpful? Batteries are easy enough to replace although you do need to use a quarter instead of a nickel to remove the casing. I only use the collar 4 days a week so the Batteries do last a couple more months than suggested. Written by a PetSafe customer. Helpful?
